COAL CRISIS.

UNHAPPY OUTLOOK.

[Service to the "Telegraph."]

Bombay, Mar. 24, 10.30 a.m.

There is much uncertainty as to the result of Monday's conference. Further wholesale reductions have been made in the railway service and the weekend has been very depressing. Meetings held on several coalfields yesterday augured ill for a settlement, the miners resolving to adhere to their full demands.

FIVE MILLION NEARLY STARVING.

Bombay, Mar. 25, 7.45 a.m.

It is estimated that three million workers are unemployed and that five million, including women and children are on the verge of starvation.

The closing down of factories is now extending in the South of England.

ACTORS SUFFER.

One curious effect of the strike is that American theatrical managers in London are being besieged by English actors for engagements in America owing to the falling off in audiences at the theatre.

THE BILL.

Bombay, Mar. 23 2.50 p.m.

The Commons have concluded the committee stage on the Minimum Wages Bill. The Government accepted the amendment that district board awards shall not be less than existing rates for piece-workers and day men.

TODAY'S FATEFUL NEGOTIATIONS.

The statement of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald encourages the belief that an agreement may result on Monday without legislation, but it is feared that South Wales owners are still obdurate, even if the leaders accept the proposed district boards. The question of the prolongation of the strike will depend on the men, whose disappointment at not obtaining the promised rates, together with the possible Government measures to protect the men who are anxious to resume work, may well lead to grave disorders.

COAL CRISIS.

FUNDS EXHAUSTED.

[Service to the "Telegraph."]

By general agreement, the railway companies will sacrifice the passenger traffic to the food trains throughout the country. It is astonishing that hitherto, despite the rise in the price of coal, prices of necessities have nowhere increased. Nevertheless, in the mining and industrial districts extraordinary conditions prevail, and there is much suffering and poverty. The miners' funds are mostly exhausted, or will be next week, this despite reduced payments. For example, out of nine large districts in England and Wales, only two have funds left.

FEEDING THE CHILDREN.

The position with regard to other trades unions is, in many instances, worse than it has been for some time. The funds are exhausted. Consequently throughout the country, town councils, boards of guardians, education boards and landowners (prominent among whom are the Duke of Portland, the Earl of Crews) and the clergy are distributing food and firewood. The situation in South Wales is perhaps the most critical. Twenty-one canyons are feeding children, the days including Saturdays and Sundays. The most hopeful aspect is that the pits are able to resume immediately, or, at the worst, after two or three days' preparation.

EFFECT ON THE CONTINENT.

London, March 23.

The strike is beginning to be severely felt on the Continent. The shipping of Germany and France has already been affected, and freights from Portugal to England have been raised forty per cent. Spain has prohibited the export of coal, and has suppressed the duties on foreign coal. The butter and bacon factories of Denmark are threatened, as the railways are economising and causing delays. Copenhagen is threatened with darkness.

A PITIFUL SIGHT.

A queue of six thousand men in Birmingham waited for five hours to buy two-pennyworths of corporation coke.

ANOTHER STRIKE THREATENED.

The Seamen's Union threatens to order a strike as a protest against the arrest of Mr. Tom Mann.

COAL SCARCIE AT RIO DE JANEIRO.

London, March 24, 4.15 a.m.
Reuter's correspondent at Rio de Janeiro states that the coal merchants have notified shipping companies that the stocks of coal are inadequate.

CHINA IN TRANSITION.

LOAN NEGOTIATIONS.

[Service to the "Telegraph."]

London, March 23, 7.15 p.m.

With reference to the rumour current in Peking as to the refusal of the admission of an Anglo-Belgian loan on the Paris bourse it is declared in Paris that the matter is still unconsidered. Reuter is informed that the Eastern bank, acting for a syndicate of Russian, French, Belgian and British groups, the last-mentioned consisting of J. H. Schroder and Co., bankers, E. D. Sassoon and Company, Brown, Shipley and W. Greenwell and Co., Sir Marcus Samuel and others, is conducting negotiations, which are still proceeding.

CHINESE SUFFRAGISTS.

London, Mar. 23, 4.45 a.m.

Reuter's correspondent at Shanghai states that a party of Amazons, dissatisfied with the Nanking Assembly's lukewarm approval of the principle of votes for women, invaded the Assembly house. They broke the windows, mauled the guards, and terrorised the members into re-opening the discussion on female suffrage, although the members had meanwhile summoned soldiers for protection.

EXTRAORDINARY HOAX.

Shanghai, Mar. 23.

An unknown person telegraphed to President Yuan Shih-kai in the name of Wong Hing, Minister for War, offering himself as chief adviser to the new Cabinet. President Yuan Shih-kai telegraphed to Wong Hing accepting his offer. The latter was greatly surprised to receive this message and telegraphed back asking that enquiries should be made.

SENATE NOT WANTED.

The Nanking Assembly has communicated with the various provinces asking them to oppose jointly the proposal of the Hupai delegates for the formation of a provisional Senate.

NEW APPOINTMENTS.

President Yuan Shih-kai has appointed Chu Kai-kim manager, and Fung Yuen-ting, assistant manager of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway.

REPUBLICANS MUTINY.

The troops under General Keung Kwai-tai stationed in Shensi, have broken out into mutiny and are indulging in general looting.

MANCHU ARMY DEFEATED.

Sing Wan, a Manchu general, who is making an attempt to restore the young Emperor to the Throne, has been severely defeated by the Republicans. He has retreated upon Kansu.

ATTEMPT ON WAR MINISTER.

An attack was made recently by an assassin, on Wong Hing, the Minister for War while he was paying a visit. Fortunately he escaped unhurt, but Chan Tso, a military official who was with him was killed in the struggle. The assassin escaped.

FROM JAPANESE SOURCES.

Tokyo, Mar. 25.

Mongolia and Tibet have conspired to sever connection with the Republic. In this connection messengers were sent secretly to Russia, and it is reported that Russia has consented to use her influence to preserve their security and prevent interference by other Powers. (Ind. News Agency.)

ALCOHOL AND BUSINESS LIFE.

Pros and Cons.

The Lord Mayor of London (Sir Thomas Moor Crosby) presided at a conference for City men, summoned by the National Temperance League, at which address on "Alcohol and Adulteration in Relation to Business Life" were delivered by Sir Thomas Barlow, President of the Royal College of Physicians, and Sir Thomas Clouston. The meeting, which was held at the Mansion House, was numerously attended.

Sir Thomas Barlow said that there had been in recent years an enormous improvement in every rank of society with regard to the consumption of alcohol. It was rapidly becoming less imperative to commercial travellers to give free drinks to secure an order, and one hoped that in the next generation the custom would become obsolete. The use of alcohol had been curtailed to a remarkable extent in hospitals and infirmaries, and it was now only ordered for specific reasons (and not in the ordinary routine). While they should rejoice in the change of public sentiment, the drink habit was still a great curse and one of the most important factors in crime, poverty, insanity, and national inefficiency. It had been abundantly proved that in Arctic expedition alcohol gave no help, and abstinence from it was regarded as a sine qua non for safety.

Sir Thomas Clouston said that with most people a certain amount of alcohol promoted happiness and a sense of satisfaction. That would be a good thing if it were not attended by danger. During the period of adolescence at all events the taking of alcohol was attended with extreme danger to such a delicate organ as the human brain. The history of some men with specialised brains and minds was infinitely tragic. Burns did not live his life or do the work he might have done. Poe spoiled his life through excess of alcohol taken in the early part of his life, and the same applied to Swinburne. From 15 to 20 per cent. of all cases of mental disease were due directly to alcohol, and a man with a nervous hereditary weakness who took alcohol before the age of 25 did so at the peril of his reason. They might talk to the young man from the point of view of strict temperance without taking the total abstinence views. No man should take alcohol until his beard had grown, and even after that he should be extremely careful.

The Lord Mayor said that when he began practice in the City 60 years ago it was common for young men to have a morning glass of beer at 11 o'clock, but he steadfastly set his face against it. Alcohol was not a sustainer like a good pot of tea, and if any one could invent a non-injurious drink that could give the same comfort with one's meals, then alcohol would go to the wall. He knew of no melody for which alcohol was a cure. As a temporary remedy it was useful in certain cases of indigestion but in cases of serious illness it was known no case in which alcohol entered as a curing factor.

The Craze for Athletics.

Both in the United States and in the United Kingdom there are signs that the craze for athletics which has obsessed schools, colleges and educational circles generally for many years past has about reached the top of the curve, and that soon the usual reaction may be expected to set in. It may not be a violent reaction, but certainly it would appear from various signs now discernible in the press of both hemispheres that athletics will in the near future be relegated to their proper place in the scholastic curriculum and not continued to be held up as the all-absorbing fetish to be worshipped indiscriminately. Mens sano in corpore sano is one of the wisest of axioms, tried by the centuries and not found wanting if it is followed with that calm discretion which St. Paul crystallized in the observation, Be ye temperate in all things. But, unfortunately, it is far from being the invariable habit of those responsible for the training of the growing youth of the nation to proceed temperately. The word went forth among the schoolmen that athletics must be made a big feature and soon the enthusiasts obtained control and drove the moderates before them. For many years in England no word of protest was heard, but as time went by and the effects of one or two decades of strenuous athletics became apparent men began to doubt the wisdom of much that was being done on the football field, the running track, in the boats or in the gymnasium.

Daily Press.

Women in China.

Whatever the reason may be the fact is undoubted that the women in China are beginning to look into their position. The increase of knowledge regarding social conditions in Europe and America has stimulated an earnest desire among Chinese women for education, and this desire in recent years has been met by the establishment of girls' schools in many parts of the country. Indeed we read quite recently of a school being established in Canton "for the training of ladies to qualify as members of the National Assembly." The tutors were to be a number of law students who have studied in Japan—students, presumably of the male sex. Whether this is part of a widespread organization we do not know, but this announcement, combined with suffragette exploits in Shanghai and Nanking, suggest that there is an organization of women who have imbibed the doctrines and copied the methods of the British Women's Enfranchisement movement, and now that they have commenced to forcibly draw attention to their grievances by raiding the National Assembly and smashing the furniture, just to emphasize the urgency of their demands, we assume that, like the British suffragettes they will not be happy till their ambitions are fully realized.

South China Morning Post.

Aye Ready.

Publication to-day of details concerning the Army Estimates calls for some remark. One cannot help comparing the fine physique and excellent demeanour of the soldiers who garrison Hongkong to-day with the dandified more-ornamental-than-useful article which was the "pride" of the nation some years ago. Vast changes for the betterment of the British Army have been made since the terrible disasters of the Boer war taught the need. The other day, in discussing the Army in the House of Commons, Colonel Seely handed to Mr. Asquith a sealed envelope, which, so it was afterwards said, contained proof that an army of 150,000 men could be detached for war service in any part of the world at a few hours' notice, and this without disturbing the troops in India, Ceylon, or any other Eastern garrison.

SPANKED HIS WIFE.

Remarkable Divorce Evidence.

Some remarkable evidence was given at the Divorce Court in London on Feb. 17, in the suit in which the petitioner is Mrs. Beatrice Studley, the daughter of a retired Army officer, who asks for a dissolution of her marriage with Mr. John Tatchell Studley, on the ground of his alleged cruelty and misconduct. Mr. Studley denies the charges, and alleges that the petitioner has herself been guilty of misconduct with Mr. Arthur Keane Tharp, of Fawley, Southampton. Both Mrs. Studley and Mr. Tharp deny the allegations, while Mrs. Muriel Roche intervenes, denying the misconduct alleged against her by the petitioner. The case is being heard before Sir Samuel Evans and a special jury, and the Divorce Court was crowded when his Lordship took his seat.

Mr. Studley, who, before his marriage, had been engaged in big game hunting in Africa, is some years older than his wife. In her evidence Mrs. Studley gave instances of alleged cruelty by her husband, and also declared he had admitted misconduct with Mrs. Roche. In support of her case she produced entries from her diary. Mr. Studley's diary has also formed an important feature of the case.

The respondent in the witness-box now denied that before his marriage he told Mrs. Studley that he had an income of £1,500 a year. His net income was about £200 a year. He had settled practically everything he possessed upon his wife.

Mr. Le Bas: Throughout your married life have there been constant difficulties about money matters, and has that led to quarrels?—Yes.

Mr. Le Bas put to the witness the abusive expressions he was alleged to have used. Witness denied them all.

Are these the sort of expressions you are in the habit of using towards your wife or anybody else?—No.

Respondent and Mother-in-law. The first charge of cruelty alleged by your wife, is about six weeks or two months after your marriage, when she said you throw her to the floor at Basildon. Is it true?—No.

Was there anything on which such an accusation could be founded at that time?—No.

Coming to the paint brush incident, Mr. Studley, denying his wife's version, said he was painting a towel horse. Mrs. Studley came into the room, and said she thought he would make a mess with the paint. He assured her he would not, and after a while just touched her on the cheek with the brush in his hand. It was not true that he deliberately dipped the brush in the paint pot and thrust the brush in her eyes.

On the night of the Caledonian ball in June, 1905, while dressing, witness said he complained that some trimmings were not on his Windsor uniform, with the result that Mrs. Studley "went for me, smashed me in the face with her fists, pulled my hair, and generally ill-treated me."

Mr. Le Bas: In the diary, the entry relating to the incident has obviously been altered. Did you alter it?—No. It originally read: "She smashed me in the face with her fists."

Counsel referred witness to an entry in his diary on January 23, 1908, and asked: "Was there trouble with your mother-in-law, Mrs. De Chair?"—Yes.

What happened to the nurse?—The Christian Science nurse do you mean?

I mean the nurse your mother-in-law had?—She sent for a nurse.

Had you anything to do with the nurse being sent away, or with your mother-in-law leaving the house?—No.

Cab and Lift Incidents.

He denied his wife's story of the cab incident after a ball in June, 1908. She declared witness assaulted her. They went to a ball given by Lady Glen Coats. About ten minutes to two he went to his wife and asked if they were going home. She asked to stay a little longer. Later he returned, and with a bad grace she consented to go home. In the cab Mrs. Studley turned to him and said: "You always spoil my fun, you brute," and smashed my hat down over my eyes. The reference in his diary with regard to this had been altered by someone.

Did you mutilate it?—What, her?—

Mr. Le Bas: No, the diary? (laughter).—Oh, no. Mr. Studley went on to deny his wife's version of the lift incident. He never threw her on the floor of the lift, telling her to go to h—, What happened was this. There had been some difference of opinion. When they got into the lift witness pulled the cord. The lift jerked, and when they got to the top witness stopped it.

On that date, March 23, 1909, Mr. Studley entered in his diary: "I am sick of my life. The selfish stupid Beatrice. We have had such a row, and I don't care if I never go home again. Beatrice and I dined alone. Very stiff evening." Mrs. Studley's entry was as follows: "Dined out, and Cui got into a rage with cabman, and afterwards with me. Tried to kill me in the lift. Mother terrified."

Mr. Le Bas: Have you ever attempted to strangle your wife?—Never.

Threat of Suicide. I see the pages in your diary from August 23 to September 7 have been torn out bodily. Did you do it?—Certainly not.

Witness admitted that once he attempted to throw himself out of the window at Sloane-street. He and his wife had had a frightful row about something or other, and she nagged him to such an extent that he threatened to throw himself out of the window. "My wife got hold of me," he said, "for the purpose of keeping me back, and, turning round to her dressing-table, took up a silver-backed brush and cut me over the head with it, breaking the handle. I turned round and said: 'You little brute!' She then threw herself on the bed and kicked at me with her heels, and I deliberately spanked her."

Mr. Studley, after describing the scene between himself and his wife stated that later on the same day she "went for him," cutting his face. Subsequently there was a row over the baby. Witness said when he entered the house the child was crying, and he protested against the child being abused. Without rhyme or reason his wife went for him. She got her finger inside his mouth and pulled out a tooth. Witness said he was not angry, and pointed out to Mrs. Studley what her want of self-control had brought about, and concluded with the remark to her: "You little beast."

Referring to the interview with his wife in January, 1911, witness denied he confessed misconduct. He told her he would do the case, as there was a woman's name, and Mrs. Studley deliberately asked him to put himself in the wrong. At the same time he told her he would not make any charges against her, "as I did not want to drag her name down to the dirt."

Did you ever say to your wife that if she took you back she could go her own way and do as she liked?—No.

It is said you have made confessions of misconduct with Mrs. Roche and some other person. Have you ever confessed to misconduct?—Never.

Did you confess to misconduct with a waitress or shopgirl in the City?—No.

A Scene. At this stage Mrs. Studley, who had been seated at the solicitor's table, was taken out of court in a fainting condition.

Continuing his evidence, Mr. Studley said that on the occasion when the smoking-room door was alleged to have been locked, Mrs. Roche came to lunch. Miss Maclean was to have been there, but went golfing instead. Mrs. Roche said she could not lunch with witness alone, and he replied: "My wife knows. She told me to ask you before she went away." After luncheon they went to the smoking-room, where there was a fire. He afterwards walked with her to Cadogan-gardens, and returned home alone in a taxi. The smoking-room door was never locked by him.

After an interval, Mrs. Studley apparently recovered and returned into Court with another lady. Mr. Studley went on to say that in a conversation he and his wife had as to their married life, he said: "Ocherub, this cannot go on. There are only two courses open to us—either separation or divorce." She replied: "Separation won't suit me." He never offered to provide his wife with evidence for a divorce if she would not drag Mrs. Roche's name into the case.

On October 13, 1910, witness wrote a letter to his wife about their financial affairs, and said:

Our income may be £200 less through your interference. You should have thought of the boy, for you are throwing away his birthright for a mess of ignorance. The estate, probably, will not fetch £15,000 after paying mortgages. I have cautioned you time after time, but you chose to go in your own way squandering money. I am dreadfully upset about it, but you will live to find you cannot ride rough-shod over everybody.

In a later letter witness wrote his wife, and said:—

My Dear Beatrice,—I am writing to put the position which has arisen before you, and to say on what terms I am prepared to return to Wilton-street, thus giving our matrimonial venture another chance. I am loth to do anything in a hurry, both for the boy's sake, whom I worship, and for your own. I cannot forget that you are my boy's mother, and that we have spent eight years together. Looking back upon the past, I can honestly say I have spent only one year of happiness, and that was the year before the boy's birth. You were reasonable and sweet and kind, and if you had continued in this way we should have been a happy pair. You fondly imagine that I am a weak, good-natured fool, because I have given way to you.

Not a Sermon. The letter continued:

Now the time has arrived when this is no longer bearable, now that you tell me it is unnatural and unmanly to love my own boy, and tell me it is not necessary to kiss him. This is not meant to be a sermon but to show you that a woman's tongue and temper can make a man's life unbearable. You have so little control over yourself that you do not consider those who love you best. You have practically and effectively turned me out of my own house without considering my convenience.

Now I do not intend to stand this state of things any longer. I cannot teach you kindness of heart, so that if you cannot alter I cannot come back. You have behaved like a spoilt, selfish, and ignorant woman, although you have everything to gain. Now I will tell you exactly on what terms I will return to Wilton-street. You must first of all curb your tongue and temper, and treat me with due consideration. You cannot drive me, and I tell you frankly that I cannot allow you to rule the roost as you have done. You think you are a clever woman, but you are nothing of the sort.

I am in the invidious position of having no estate, no furniture, no silver, and worst of all, no baby. You must also retract the allegations contained in your letter of the 11th. I cannot promise to provide you with money other than that from the estate, for I must save money for the boy. Now think well of what I say. Your life and happiness is in the balance. You must choose for yourself.

Mr. Studley, answering counsel, said he had had reason to complain of his wife's temper from early in their married life.

The latest papers from Home report that the cross charges of misconduct were rejected and the case was proceeding in regard to the alleged cruelty.

THE HUMAN FULL-STOP.

A writer in a story we remember reading some years ago points out how damping the cold "I beg your pardon?" or "Do you think so?" is to the man who is on the point of becoming expansive and who hopes to be allowed to air his opinions on a subject at some length. There are men who habitually check us in this way. They are human fullstops. In their presence, the conversation runs into a blind alley. You throw out a feeling, "Awful," you say, "this about the Insurance Act, isn't it?" "Think so?" they say, and you wonder if a remark on Rugby football would lead to a more animated rush of dialogue. One of the worst of this class was the man who intervened in the correspondence on the subject of paying fares on tramcars with the cold statement that, strictly speaking, a fare could not be collected until the end of a journey. Dozens of enthusiasts who had thought out intensely brainy schemes of the pay-as-you-enter order must have felt as if they had run into an iceberg. There is no dealing with these men. The ordinary man wants the conversation to go on. The full-stop wants to pounce upon it and nip it in the bud. It is not possible to ignore them. In fact, for a garrulous man, existence in their presence is almost impossible, and he must resign himself.—The "Globe."

WHICH IS WORSE?
One point made by Mr. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, in the great speech with which he introduced the Naval Estimates is likely to excite some controversy. He compared armaments and finance, and declared that just as credit had taken the place of actual ready payments, so had the over-increasing amount spent upon armaments been substituted for actual war. The theory is attractive, and, at first sight, plausible. There does seem to be a strong analogy, but it does not necessarily follow that it is complete. And it has to be remembered that neither credit nor the preparation in times of peace for possible war, are new developments. Credit has been given ever since the first agriculturist received an advance on his ripening crops, and Biblical history tells us continually of neighbouring peoples preparing for future wars.
The greatest distinction between the two things is that credit, if it is not overdone, is beneficial, while the maintenance of and addition to huge armaments is prejudicial. With the stupendous advance in means of communication has developed an immense international trade, which simply could not exist without the credit system. The system has merely been an inevitable development coincident with the development of home and foreign trade to the proportions it has assumed during the last century. It has not displaced trade for cash; that continues on a much larger scale than before, but obviously it must have its limitations. Similarly railways have become an indispensable in modern communications, but nevertheless there are probably more wheeled vehicles not propelled by mechanical power in the world to-day than there were before the institution of the first railway. All the innovations and expansions in regard to industry and commerce and all that are associated with them, have added to the wealth of the world. That cannot be said of the augmentation of armaments. The money that is put into the means of making war is as utterly lost if it were taken out in a ship and jettisoned in mid-ocean. In less than twenty years from to-day, apart from the chances of war, the original Dreadnought will be scrap iron.
A statesman can hardly be blamed for endeavouring to justify the appropriation of money that he is asking a Parliament to sanction. It is his business to represent the expenditure as essential and to bring forward the most convincing arguments at his command. From this point of view Mr. Churchill was entirely right in seeking to establish a parallel even where one, upon analysis, does not appear to exist. His sole duty was to get the House to accept the Estimates presented to it, and if he employed a comparison that was superficially arresting it would be difficult to blame him. Also it would be charitable to assume that he himself was convinced of the soundness of the arguments he put forward. There is an interesting disposition to regard the utterances of statesmen as merely a mere vamped up for the occasion, and we think that it would be lamentable for such a cynical belief to become a confirmed custom. Still, it is perfectly legitimate to disagree with Mr. Churchill's conclusions, and we are disposed to think that, although the Naval Estimates show a slight shrinkage, when they are considered in the light of the proportion that they bear to the general expenditure, many will begin mentally to inquire "Which is worse—actual war or the insurance against it?"

A boatman was fined $10 at the Marine Court to-day for depositing building rubbish in the waters of the Colony. For a similar offence another man was fined $8.
At the Magistracy this morning 41 men appeared, one charged with keeping an opium divan and the others with smoking there. The keeper was fined $250 and the smokers $2.

An American sailor made his appearance in the Police Court this morning on a charge of having assaulted a Chinese on Saturday night. From the evidence it appeared that the defendant struck the complainant in the face and he fell to the ground cutting his eye badly. The defendant was fined five dollars.
At the Police Court this morning two Chinese were charged with having in their possession six Winchester rifles and four hundred rounds of ammunition without having the necessary license. They were further charged with having a quantity of ammunition that exceeded twenty-five dollars in value without having it enclosed in a wooden box and properly labelled. One defendant was fined $250 or, in default, three months' hard labour, while the other was discharged, with a caution.

A Strike Sidelight.
The following pathetic passage appears in a letter from home, which we have had the privilege of seeing:—"We are in the throes of a coal strike. The dining room grate has two bricks in it, one on either side. We are studying economy for once!!!"
Shanghai Gas Co., Ltd.
We have received from Messrs. Gibb, Livingston & Co. the report of the Shanghai Gas Co., Ltd., for 1911. The net profit for the year amounted to Tls. 288,012.71, an increase compared to 1910 of Tls. 37,455.64. It is proposed to pay a dividend of 7 per cent., making 13 per cent. for the year. The annual meeting will be held on Thursday next.

THE VOLUNTEERS.
General Anderson's one Complaint.
Addressing the volunteers at the inspection which took place on Saturday, Major General Anderson said that he was glad to see so many had attended and was very pleased with what he had seen. Under the new organization the volunteers were to be put into the first line of defence instead of being kept in reserve as hitherto. He had seen a good deal of the tactics of the volunteers in the various manoeuvres, and he was very pleased with them. He was also pleased to see that they had taken to maximum drill, and he hoped they would make themselves efficient in it in the near future. He had only one complaint to make and that was the same as last year, viz., that there were not enough volunteers in the Colony. He was very glad to have been present and was highly satisfied with what he had seen.

SIR FREDERICK LUGARD.
In reply to Sir Frederick Lugard's telegram of farewell to the Colony, His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government despatched the following to meet him at Penang:—"Hongkong will ever remember your administration with gratitude. European and Chinese communities unite in wishing you both God-speed."

THE ALLEGED GUN RUNNING.
A Large Consignment.
We are informed that the party or parties suspected by the authorities to be connected with gun-running by the fact that arms and incriminating correspondence were found in the bed-room of a local hotel, have been traced to Haiphong. It is also stated that a consignment of arms has fallen into the hands of the authorities, which would have meant a profit to the persons interested of at least $50,000.

HONGKONG A.D.C.
"The Gondollers."
If there is one thing more than another which the actor and actress desire, whether amateur or otherwise, it is an appreciative audience. It need not necessarily be a large one so long as it has sympathy with the play and the players' efforts, but when the audience is a large one and appreciative as well, it inspires the actor and actress, with the confidence which goes far to ensure success. The members of the A.D.C. on Saturday night must have felt inspired by the large audience and by the constant and whole-hearted applause thundered out, as it was. Encores were numerous as were the presentations of flowers. Mr. G. P. Lammett's rendering of "Take a pair of sparkling eyes" sent the great audience into raptures whilst the Cachua dance and the duel between Miss Gordon and Mrs. Hunter were extremely well received. Mr. Silas was loudly cheered for his song "I stole the Prince" and the choruses reflected talent and training. The scenery was beautiful and such setting has certainly never been excelled in the Colony. The staging was meritorious and added considerable charm to the character of the play.
The Supper.
After the performance the members of the casts, the officials and orchestra sat together on the stage. His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government joined them. Mr. W. G. Worcester, the secretary, proposed the health of the producer of the piece, Mr. John Robertson, in most felicitous terms. In reply Mr. Robertson thanked the members of the company for the valuable assistance they had given and also His Excellency for the kindly interest he had taken in the A.D.C. since his arrival in the Colony. He hoped that His Excellency's interest would be maintained and that his influence would be exerted towards re-establishing the A.D.C. on a popular and prosperous footing as formerly. Mr. Robertson proposed a toast of welcome to the members of the Philharmonic Society and thanked them for their hearty cooperation in making the production a success. He hoped that harmonious relations would long exist between the two societies, and he wished especially to thank Mr. Denman Fuller for his untiring zeal in training the chorus and orchestra. Mr. Fuller responded in happy vein. Thereafter Mr. G. A. Caldwell presented Mrs. Adams with a jewelled pendant in acknowledgment of her services as a companion at the many rehearsals. His Excellency Mr. Severn made a brief speech highly commending the A.D.C. upon its production of "The Gondollers" and concluded by inviting the whole company to supper at Government House after the performance on Wednesday evening.

COMPANY MEETINGS.
China Sugar Refining Co., Ltd.
The thirty-fourth annual general meeting of the China Sugar Refining Co., Ltd. was held this morning at the offices of the general agents, Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co. The Hon. Mr. C. H. Ross presided, and among those present were Sir Paul Chater, Messrs. F. Maitland, E. Shellim, A. P. White, J. W. O. Bonnar (consulting committee), R. E. Bellios, H. Percy Smith, W. H. Potts, W. E. Clarke, E. F. Aucott, T. S. Forrest, J. Rodger, R. C. Edwards, Ho Fook, Ho Kom-tong, Lo Cheung-sui, and J. Barton, secretary.
The secretary having read the notice convening the meeting, the Chairman said:—
Gentlemen,—The report and accounts with auditors' report attached having been in your hands for some days I propose with your permission to take them as read.
The year 1911 was a remarkable one in the sugar trade all over the world, and the course of the market presents a forcible illustration of the uncertain nature of this particular business.
During the autumn of 1910 the estimates of the beet crop in Europe were largely increased and pointed to a record production for the coming year, with the result that there was a heavy fall in values everywhere; supplies were in excess of demand, and the year 1911 opened with the prospect of a lengthened period of low prices and dragging markets. This unfortunate first proved to be the case for the first six months of the year, and owing to keen competition in the consuming centres great difficulty was experienced in marketing our sugars, for which moreover unprofitable prices had to be accepted.
At the beginning of July rumours became prevalent that the beet crop in Europe was suffering from want of rain, and prices began to harden all round; owing to the unprecedented drought which continued during Aug. and Sept. great damages were in fact done to the crop, and it was computed that the output would be some 2,000,000 tons short of the estimate.
This caused values to advance sharply during the early autumn months and as prices in the Far East responded to the improvement in Europe we were able to establish rates which showed a very good margin of profit making it probable that the losses incurred during the earlier part of the year would be at least wiped out.
Unfortunately, however, before we had been able to reap much benefit from the improved condition of the market everything was upset by the outbreak of the rebellion in China which practically put a stop to all business in that country and necessitated a curtailment of production at the refinery which told seriously against the cost of production during the last three months of the year. You will realise therefore that we were beset with difficulties, which I regret to say are still with us so far as the China market is concerned, but I am sanguine that as soon as political affairs have settled down in the north an improvement in our trade, as with all others, will soon follow.
From the accounts presented to you, you will have noted that our realization of dividend fund has been depleted to the extent of 2 lak of dollars in order to make provision for the payment of a dividend, and while I regret that it has been necessary to trench upon this fund I may say that had it not been for the somewhat phenomenal rise which took place in sugar during last autumn the payment of any dividend would probably have been out of the question, and I trust therefore that you will approve of the above mentioned transfer to credit of profit and loss account, and of the proposed distribution of $5 per share. Before moving the adoption of the report and accounts I shall be pleased to answer any questions relating to them which shareholders may desire to put.
There being no questions, the Chairman moved the adoption of the report and accounts, and the motion, being seconded, by Mr. Clarke, was carried.

The consulting committee, consisting of Sir O. P. Chater, Messrs. E. Shellim, F. Maitland, J. W. O. Bonnar and H. P. White were re-elected on the motion of Mr. Bellios, seconded by Mr. Edwards.
Messrs. H. P. Smith and A. R. Lowe were re-elected auditors, on the motion of Mr. W. H. Potts, seconded by Mr. Rodger.
The Chairman:—That is all the business, gentlemen, dividend warrants will be ready to-morrow, on application.
Luzon Sugar Refining Co., Ltd.
The thirtieth annual meeting of the shareholders in the Luzon Sugar Refining Co., Ltd. was held this morning at the offices of the general managers, Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co. The Hon. Mr. C. H. Ross presided, and there were present, Messrs. J. W. O. Bonnar, H. P. White, consulting committee, G. U. Moxon, H. N. Leefe, A. Piercy, T. S. Forrest, Beath, G. V. Tisdall, Po Sien, Wong Leung-him and the Secretary, Mr. J. Barton.
The Secretary having read the notice convening the meeting, the Chairman said:—
Gentlemen,—The report and accounts with auditors' report attached having been in your hands for some days I propose with your permission to take them as read.
The demand for sugar in the Philippine market kept the refinery at Malabon almost continuously at work during the year, and although prices remained low during the first six months a fair margin of profit was obtainable. During July and August the unprecedented drought in Europe caused a sharp advance in the price of sugar all over the world, to which the market in Manila eventually responded, and as we had fortunately secured a considerable supply of raw sugar in June and July at a cheap price, we were able to take full advantage of the situation and command a very handsome profit on our refined sugar during the remainder of the year.
The result as disclosed by the accounts now before you is a gain of $94,370.84 on working, and after allowing for interest, etc., a reduction in the sum at debit of profit and loss account to $68,600.07, which I trust you will consider satisfactory.
I should mention that demand at the moment appears to have slackened, and that owing to a decline in the price of sugar everywhere from the highest point reached in September last we cannot now obtain the same margin of profit as was then the case; the position of sugar generally, however, is sound and supplies especially in the east small and I have little doubt therefore that when present stocks have gone more into consumption there will be renewed enquiry. Before moving the adoption of the report and accounts I shall be pleased to answer any questions which shareholders may wish to ask in connection with them.

There being no questions the Chairman moved the adoption of the report and accounts, Mr. Moxon seconded, and the motion was carried.
On the proposition of Mr. Leefe, seconded by Mr. Beath, Messrs. H. P. White and J. W. O. Bonnar were re-elected to the consulting committee.
Mr. A. R. Lowe was re-elected auditor on the motion of Mr. Piercy, seconded by Wong Leung-him.
The Chairman:—That is all the business, gentlemen, thank you for your attendance.
"Le Matin," of Paris, states that during the naval manoeuvres in the Channel on February 27, at which M. Deloase, Minister of Marine, was present, a thrilling incident occurred while four submarines were attempting to torpedo the cruisers. The approach at full speed of the Ostend-Dover mail packet was unnoticed until a submarine was on the point of colliding with it. With great daring the commander of the submarine plunged rapidly, and the packet boat passed just above. Afterwards the submarine came to the surface unharmed.

THE BANK OF CANTON, LIMITED.
The Opening Ceremony.
Yesterday a large number of Chinese business men and a goodly proportion of the foreign community were present at the opening of the Bank of Canton, Limited, at No. 6 Des Vaux Road, which was presided over by Luk Pong-shan. The Bank premises were made gay with bunting, with an inscription worked out in flowers over the door. The function took the form of a tea meeting, prior to which a number of congratulatory addresses were received, while in the course of the programmes speeches were delivered; the speakers including Mr. Ying-piu, Li Yuk-tong, treasurer of Canton, and Li Wat-ching, chief accountant, who delivered the following speech in English:—
On being called upon to speak on this auspicious occasion, I feel that it is not only a duty which I owe to this institution but it is both a privilege and an honour. You will all, I am sure, be interested in a brief history of the formation of this Bank and an outline of the objects which it has in view. Every one is aware of the fact that there is a large number of wealthy Chinese merchants and residents in the United States of America who conduct a very extensive trade with their homeland and the Orient. The transactions are of very large amount, and naturally elaborate banking facilities are necessary to finance them. For many years the Canton Bank in San Francisco, founded by the Chinese merchants there, have handled those financial transactions, but having no branch on this side have had to pass the business through ordinary correspondent banks or agents. No long ago it was decided that the extent of the business of the Chinese merchants in America with the East was large enough to warrant the opening of a bank of their own on this side, and this decision was given effect to in the establishment of this institution, the Bank of Canton, Limited, in Hongkong. I may state that this bank is not a branch of nor in any way attached to the Canton Bank of San Francisco. Both institutions are separate, although they are closely related to each other in view of the fact that most shareholders of the latter bank are also shareholders of this institution. Furthermore, one acts for the other as sole agents and both work on the same system and principle. We are much indebted to the Canton Bank of San Francisco for the part which they have taken in bringing this institution into shape. At the commencement of their organization work and stayed with us several months. In him we had the good fortune of having a man with wide experience and exceptional ability to guide this new institution in its first steps. I may further mention that Mr. Look Tin-eli, the President of the Canton Bank of San Francisco, arrived a few days ago, and during his stay here of several months, he will give us the benefit of his experience and advice. The Bank of Canton, Ltd., has been formed, and is registered in Hongkong in accordance with the requirements of the British Law regarding banking institutions, and its registered capital is $2,000,000. At first it was intended to subscribe a capital of $10,000,000, but the promoters decided to commence on a moderate scale of $2,000,000. Although the bank is virtually a Chinese bank, the capital all being provided by Chinese shareholders in the United States of America, Hongkong and Australia, its affairs and business will be conducted on strictly Western methods, and the customs and usages now in vogue with the European banks will be generally followed. I may express a hope that similar institutions to ours will be peacefully established throughout the Empire—there is room enough for all. Such banks are absolutely essential for the development of the trade of China. Chinese traders will be able to obtain greater facilities for the conduct of their business, and naturally they will be encouraged to ex-

...they will be encouraged to extend their operations, the consequence of which will be that commercial activity will be increased and the country in general will prosper thereby. Before I sit down, there is one point on which I wish to lay special emphasis, and that is, it must not be thought for one moment that a corporation like this will injure the interests and business of European banks which are already established in the East. On the contrary, it is my firm conviction that Chinese banks run on Western methods will be able to render assistance to European bankers. As I have already said, I am fully convinced that the European banks and those like ourselves will mutually help and benefit each other and I am sure they cannot but work together in harmony and goodwill. I would take this opportunity of assuring the European bankers that the staff of the Bank of Canton, Ltd., will always do its utmost to maintain a most pleasant relationship with all the other banks in the Colony. In conclusion, on behalf of the staff of this Bank, I extend a hearty welcome to all who are present to-day and express the assurance that one and all who visit this Bank will meet with courtesy and respect and that their business will be attended to with promptitude and despatch.

BRUSH WITH PIRATES.

Captain Marabel's Thrilling Experience.

Captain Marabel of the river steamer Paul Beau had rather a lively time with pirates during his recent trip to Canton and he has good grounds for the belief that several bullets from his revolver have found billets in his aggressors.

Previous to leaving Hongkong, on Friday, he was informed by the authorities that he would have to exercise caution when passing the Tiger forts and if he proceeded in those waters it would be at his own risk. Passing the dreaded spot everything appeared peaceful and nothing untoward happened. This fact, however, did not put Captain Marabel off his guard and when he heard rifle shots he slowed his vessel down approaching Whampoa he was in readiness for any emergency.

Ringing for "full speed ahead" Captain Marabel rushed the Paul Beau past the Barriers at a good fourteen knot speed. But the attack proper had not commenced. She had just put the Barriers to stern when a fusillade of rifle shots came from the bank, but the marksmanship was fortunately faulty and whilst some just struck the hull of the vessel the majority fell short. One bullet, evidently fired from a Mauser rifle, penetrated the door of the second class quarters and narrowly missed hitting a Chinese passenger who was sleeping in his berth. The firing ceased with remarkable suddenness and the danger seemed to have passed when three junks loomed out of the darkness. The steamer turned on to one and ran it down, but the crew of one of the others threw grappling irons aboard the Paul Beau and the pirates, all armed with modern rifles, commenced to clamber up the sides. Captain Marabel who was armed with a revolver leant over the starboard rail and fired at the boarding party. From the agonising yell he came to the conclusion that he had accounted for a number of the pirates and this opinion was confirmed by the fact that the junks withdrew and no further attempt was made to board the vessel.

A collision occurred in the harbour on Saturday between a junk and the steam launch Shumun, the former being damaged to the extent of about $150. A similar accident is reported to have befallen a fishing boat and the s.s. Loongmoon off Cape Collinson, in which the former sustained considerable damage.

At the police court this morning two Japanese clerks were charged with stealing a quantity of jewellery and money from their employers, Messrs. Dobashi, to the value of $280, on Saturday. One prisoner who pleaded not guilty was discharged and the other who admitted his guilt was remanded.

DENTIST AND SOLDIER.

An Interesting Case.

At the Supreme Court this morning Mr. Justice Gompertz had before him a case which concerned a dentist and a military man. Doctors Kow Brothers sued Sergeant Wroford for the recovery of—$38—for services rendered.

Mr. Goldring appeared for the plaintiff and defendant appeared in person.

Mr. Goldring said that he did not know whether the defendant admitted the amount or was willing to pay by instalments. He had a letter from him addressed to Dr. Kow, in which he said he was willing to pay by instalments. It appeared that the Government had contracted to pay a certain amount, the defendant to pay the balance. After discussing the matter with the defendant, Mr. Goldring announced that the position, the defendant took up was that because Dr. Kow's shroff would not accept an instalment, he, defendant, was not liable to pay any of the money.

His Lordship:—Of course that is absurd.

Dr. F. Kow stated that he rendered certain dental service to the defendant, and the value of the service was $140. The Government grant was $90, and the balance was to be paid by the defendant. He signed an undertaking with the military authorities.

His Lordship:—Who did you make the contract with?—With the military authorities, as regards the Government grant.

His Lordship:—As regards the excess?—Sergeant Wroford signed an undertaking with the military authorities that he would pay the excess. That was before I commenced work.

Mr. Goldring:—Have you received any payment on account?—Yes $2.

Mr. Goldring:—How did you arrive at the figures, $38?—I agreed upon $40 as the excess amount.

Mr. Goldring:—I think you came to an arrangement that he should pay you $3 per month.—Yes, the whole trouble arose over the fact that the shroff would not take $2 which defendant offered him. Defendant then claimed that owing to that fact, I was not entitled to any of the money.

Defendant stated that about autumn 1910 he was sent by Major Macdonald, R.A.M.C., to Doctors Kow Brothers for an examination of his teeth and a statement of the approximate cost. Dr. Kow examined his teeth and made out a charge. Defendant asked him what would be the cost of fixing my mouth up, which he (defendant) considered would include the stoppings as well as the teeth. Doctor Kow said he would fix it up for $100. Defendant then stated that the Government would only allow him $28 and the rest he would have to pay himself. Dr. Kow gave him a sealed letter to Major Macdonald; he (defendant) did not know what was in it. Defendant then communicated with Major Macdonald and Major Bedford the terms quoted to him by Dr. Kow, and Major Bedford told him that it would be easy for him to pay the difference. Defendant told the Major that he could and would, and later he signed an agreement that he was willing to pay the excess.

His Lordship:—Where is that agreement?

Mr. Goldring:—It is filed with the military records, we cannot get it.

His Lordship:—Was any amount stated?

Defendant:—I don't think there was any amount fixed. Continuing, defendant stated that in the following April Dr. Kow sent him in a bill for $40 for professional services "for fillings etc." He immediately wrote him saying there was evidently some mistake as he only owed $4 which he was quite prepared to pay. The next letter he got was one saying that payment was expected by July 5 and unless the amount was paid the matter would be placed in the hands of their solicitors. Rather than make a case of it he thought he would try to pay although he did not consider that he owed the amount. He then sent $2 to Dr.

Kow and agreed to pay the rest in monthly instalments of $2. The answer he got to that was that the offer was so absurd that the matter had been referred to Lieut. Col. Close. The latter referred the matter to defendant's Company officer and defendant agreed to pay $3 a month, which was all he could afford. The Company officer informed him (defendant) that Dr. Kow had agreed to accept the offer to pay $38 in monthly instalments of $3. About two months after the agreement was made, Dr. Kow sent his shroff with a bill for $9, although there was only $6 due at the time. He offered the shroff all the money he had on him, $3, and he said that his master told him to take nothing but $9. He told the shroff that he was willing to pay the remaining $6 at the end of the month. Right through the case he had never acknowledged the debt, but simply agreed to pay to save trouble. He had a wife and five children.

Mr. Goldring said if judgment was in his favour, he did not object to instalments.

His Lordship:—There is only one point, and that is that there is immunity from civil process for any amount under $30.

Mr. Goldring:—I agree we cannot attach his pay.

His Lordship:—Can you sue him?

Mr. Goldring:—Yes, my Lord, we can sue, but we cannot issue execution against his pay, only against his personal effects.

Defendant:—The furniture and the quarters I occupy all belong to the Government; I have no personal furniture.

His Lordship pointed out that by section 144 of the Army Act, a soldier was not liable or compelled to appear in person in any civil court of law where the amount was under $30. That seemed to put plaintiff out of court.

Mr. Goldring:—I know I have looked the matter up, but I cannot say off hand.

His Lordship:—It seems to me to have that effect, and this action should not have been brought.

Mr. Goldring:—There is something I looked up.

His Lordship:—Can you refer me to it?

Mr. Goldring:—I will if you will give me time.

His Lordship adjourned the case until Friday.

Mr. Goldring said the action was only brought as a matter of principle, as there were many other similar cases.

His Lordship:—I understand there is an offer to hand over the amount to military charities?

Mr. Goldring:—Yes.

His Lordship:—The question is whether I have jurisdiction or not; it seems to me I have not.

SERIOUS CHARGES AGAINST EUROPEAN.

Alleged Embezzlement and Falsification.

Before Mr. E. A. Irving at the Police Court this afternoon, Edwin Berkeley Ayris, who arrived back from Australia on the steamship Namur, this morning, in charge of Inspector Macdonald, appeared to answer charges made against him regarding the books of the South China Morning Post Co., Ltd.

There were in all five counts in the charge, being as follows:—Embezzling the sums of $180, $80 and $70.03, being the first three charges; with omitting to enter the sum of $824 in the books of the company as being received, and with also omitting to enter a sum of $200 to the credit of the company. Prisoner, who was dressed in a blue suit, and looked thin but extremely well, after the voyage, took up a position in front of the dock and answered the charges in a firm voice.

Mr. J. M. Hodgson assistant crown solicitor appear for the prosecution while prisoner was unrepresented.

Asked to plead to the first count of the charge accused said:—

"I have nothing to say your worship, I reserve my defence."

His Worship:—You must plead; you had better plead not guilty.

Defendant:—Not guilty.

In answer to the other counts prisoner made the same plea.

Mr. Hodgson:—I appear on behalf of the Crown to prosecute, and I ask for a remand.

His Worship said he could give Wednesday March 27, but this was too early.

The Magistrate to prisoner:—Will you be defended?

No.

His Worship:—I can formally remand him and give you Monday afternoon.

Mr. Hodgson:—Monday would be better, Wednesday, is rather sudden, I shall be quite ready to go on.

A remand was then ordered until Monday, April 1 at 2.15 p.m.

POSITION AT SWATOW.

Foreigners Adopt Joint Defence Plan.

A correspondent at Swatow, writing on March 21, says:—

The Cantonese leader continued trying to induce shop-keepers to open and resume business. On the 18th and 19th things were quiet, and on the 20th it is estimated that over 100 percent of the shops had opened. At 0.30 last night two parties of soldiers met in the city and through failing to recognise each other, as friends, started firing, resulting in two being killed before the mistake was discovered.

Yesterday and the day before there was considerable fighting in Chow Chow Foo between local native troops and resident Hakkas, which resulted in 100 being reported to have been killed, and victory for the local troops. The Cantonese leader here is in sympathy with the Hakkas, and he last night despatched 200 of his soldiers from here to carry on the fight at Chow Chow Foo. The railway has stopped as the track has been torn up for several hundred feet, and these soldiers are marching up the right-of-way.

Late yesterday the British Consul and Commissioner of Customs had telegrams stating that troops were being despatched from Canton, but there seems to be considerable vagueness about it. This morning practically all shops are again closed and trade in the city is at a standstill. The harbour is working busily, but rice is about all that is being delivered from godown and at the present rate godown will soon be filled to the limit with other cargo. It is understood that the Albany is due here within a day or two to receive "hot" new Commander on transfer from the Monterey, but the future movements of both ships are not known.

The Taiwan Bank will no longer receive any large amount of money in silver.

Writing on March 22 he says:—It is learnt that the various Consuls, with the Commanders of the British, Japanese, German and American warships here, held a meeting at which a joint plan of action was mapped out and adopted. A few sailors are to be stationed at various points from the Customs landing along Kailat road out to the Japanese Consulate doing sentry duty, and upon the outbreak of trouble these men will signal to their ships and landing parties will be sent at once. It is understood that this step is to protect the many foreigners who reside in the district to be patrolled, and that firing will be prohibited within this zone.

It will be remembered that Lim Koh-tschin landed his men from Kunchow at Kid Chua, and these people brought about our recent fight. This morning a remnant of 200 of these men arrived here by the Sva Bus launch. No trouble of consequence is taking place in the city, though we have occasional cases in which Lim's soldiers have held up people in the city at night, searched them for fire arms, and taken their money during the operation. One native house was searched for arms, none found, but it is reported, $350 cash taken. Mr. Ko, the head of the Local Water Works, and electric companies, has paid Lim $5,000 for payment to his

SPORT.

The Fight for the Shield.

THE YORKSHIRES EASY VICTORY.

There were about four thousand spectators present at Happy Valley on Saturday afternoon, when the final for the shield was played between the K. O. Y. L. I. and the Naval Yard. The game which was particularly one-sided and uninteresting ended in the favour of the Yorkshires by 5 goals to 0.

The teams lined up as follows:—

K.O.Y.L.I.—Wright; Strangroom and Millership; Schofield, Young and Dowick; Vickers, Garrett, Pearson, Lindley and Crookes.

Naval Yard:—High, Carlisle and Watch; Constantine, Tovey and Tutton; Blues, Taylor, Smith, Lyons and Hodgkinson.

From the kick off the soldiers showed they were to make a fight of it and inside a few seconds they forced a corner. High had a serious time from the well placed centre but eventually the ball was put over by Young. Again the Yorkshires made an excursion into the area of the Naval goal and Vickers passing neatly to Constantine, the latter sent in a slow grounder which High fumbled and the drawing of first blood was the honour of the soldiers. Having secured a goal inside five minutes the Tykes were quite pleased with themselves and very shortly after were once again buying themselves in the opposition defence. Just when it appeared that success was to crown their efforts Carlisle got the ball away, passed to Hodgkinson who dribbled the ball cleverly down the line and dangerously near to Wright's charge, but from his centre the ball was placed over the bar. High was tested twice with hot shots, but he saved cleverly, and, through the agency of Carlisle, the ball was transferred to less dangerous quarters. From a corner the Yorkshires secured another goal and from this juncture to half-time the Yard never seemed to get within shooting distance of the soldiers' citadel.

In the second half the Yard commenced brilliantly and endangered the soldiers' goal. It was, however, but the flicker of the almost burnt out candle; a brilliance of short duration. Before fifteen minutes had elapsed the Yorkshires added another goal and with ease contributed two more before the whistle sounded. The second half was less interesting than the first and beyond the goal scored by Vickers there was little merit attached to the others scored.

Presentation of Shield.

At the close of the game, H. E. the Officer Administering the Government presented the shield and medals to the winning team, and the runners-up cup to the Naval Yard. His Excellency was introduced by Mr. J. W. O. Bonnar, the President of the Club, who spoke of the good play of the winners. The game, he said, had been somewhat disappointing, but even the losers would admit that the better team had won. The shield, he said, had been won by the navy, the military and civilians in past years, and it now went to the Army after a lapse of two years.

His Excellency then presented the trophies, after which cheers were given for His Excellency and the two teams.

On the proposition of Mr. Bonnar, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded His Excellency.

Police v. Kowloon.

The police failed miserably on Saturday in their fixture with Kowloon C.C. They managed to score only 25 for their innings. Macaskill and Measer were particularly badly, the former taking four

The other five wickets fell for three runs;
